Let's Start!

If you want to be a cook, you need to have a plan!

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe personal and regional eating habits and cooking in a range of communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What do you think about following recipes when cooking?
- Where do you find recipes?

Can Do Statements

- I can describe how to prepare food.
- I can talk about quantities and amounts.
- I can talk about future actions, plans and intentions.

Let's Explore!

Chef Bruce gives Vanessa the lowdown on how to make pulled pork.

* When you give someone "the lowdown" on something, you give them relevant and useful facts.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Vanessa: Hey Bruce, I know you have a great pulled pork recipe. Do you mind sharing your secret?

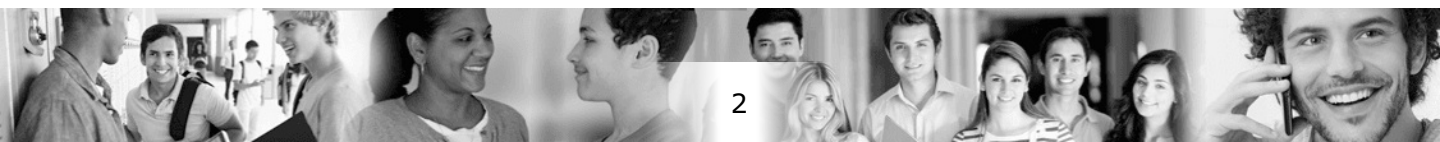

Chef Bruce: The great thing about this recipe is that you can just put all the ingredients in the cooker and walk away! I'm actually making some for tomorrow, too! The oven starts automatically at 6 a.m.!

Chef Bruce: Just coat two pounds of pork shoulder with a spice rub of chili powder and cumin. Then, cook it on a bed of garlic and half a pound of sliced onions covered with half a pint of chicken broth. When you check on it six or eight hours later, you'll have juicy meat that's ready to be shredded and served with cornbread or potatoes.

Vanessa: How am I going to cut up the meat?

Chef Bruce: Take 2 forks and shred the meat into bite-sized pieces, discarding any large pieces of fat. You can use half a cup of barbecue sauce to keep it moist. It's a versatile recipe, and it makes enough to feed a crowd! The best part is that you'll have leftovers for days!

Vanessa: This sounds delicious! Thanks again!

Let's Practice!

This recipe is enough to feed* an army!

feed* an army means to feed a lot of people.

Instructions: Choose the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences.

Word Bank

pint / pounds / enough / all / half most / any / pints / pound

Learning Points

Talking About Future Actions

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future.

- When you talk about things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the modal will.
- When you ask about intentions, you use going to.
- When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.
- When you talk about schedules or timetables in the future, you use the Simple Present tense

Will	You'll have juicy meat after 8 hours.
Going to	How am I going to cut up the meat?
Present Continuous	I'm making some for tomorrow, too!
Simple Present tense	The oven starts automatically at 6 a.m.
