Let's Start!

What's on the menu?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe personal and regional eating habits and cooking in a range of communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- Do you have a favorite recipe?
- How often do you make it?
- Do you like to make things you have never prepared before?

Can Do Statements

- I can describe how to prepare food.
- I can talk about quantities and amounts.
- I can talk about future actions, plans and intentions.

Let's Explore!

The main course is almost ready. In the meantime, here is a tray of hors d'oeuvres!

* "Hors d'oeuvres" is a French word for small appetizers served on trays at parties.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: How's the menu coming along?
Vanessa: I think I'm going to prepare a few of my favorites.
Sally: This is going to be good! I can already smell it!
Vanessa: I still need to get a few things.
Sally: Can I help you with anything? I can drop by the store tomorrow.
Vanessa: That would be great, thanks. We need a dozen slices of bacon, a jar of pickles and a couple of tins of capers. You should also get a few dozen buns.
Sally: What's all that for?
Vanessa: I'll prepare a tray of hors d'oeuvres. I'm going to make pulled pork for the main course.
Sally: That sounds great! It's quite time-consuming, though!
Vanessa: I know. That's why I'm preparing it tonight! It needs to sit in the slow cooker for a while. When the meat is tender, it will literally fall off the bone! Low temperature cooking is the key to this recipe!
Sally: This sounds like the best meal ever! All we need is a couple of pints of beer to wash it down!
Vanessa: Let's also get a gallon of juice!

Let's Practice!

Vanessa loves talking about food!

Instructions: Choose the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences. Record yourself saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Talking About Future Actions

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future. Each of these tenses has a different function.

You can use will for predictions and forecasts, for spontaneous decisions, and for offers and promises.

You can use going to for intentions, previously made decisions, or something that is very likely to happen.

You can use the Present Continuous for arrangements and plans.

You can use the Present Simple for timetables, schedules and repeated events.

Will	Going to	Present Continuous	Present Simple
I think she will win Wimbledon.	I'm going to read War and Peace this weekend.	We're getting married in Spain on the 24th.	It's Christmas next week.
The weather will be perfect all week.	We are going to get married, but we don't know when.	I'm having coffee with my boss tomorrow.	I have a German class on Tuesday.
Yes, I will marry you!	Look at those clouds! It's going to rain.	I'm meeting my accountant tomorrow at 9 a.m.	He has a job interview in two days.
I'll help you plan the party.	Watch what you're doing! You're going to fall over.	They are flying to Australia next Tuesday.
I'll see you tomorrow.
