Let's Start!

Cooking for ten takes a lot of preparation!

Learning Outcome

Describe routines and regular activities in a wider range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What is the largest meal you have ever prepared?
- How many people was the meal for?
- How much food did you make?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about quantities and amounts.
- I can respond politely to suggestions and offers.
- I can talk about future actions, plans and intentions.

Let's Explore!

Sally and Vanessa are running a tight ship! There is so much to do before the party!

* When you "run a tight ship", you control something very effectively.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: How is that guest list going? How many people are coming?
- Sally: Not so good! Looks like only half of them are going to turn up so far.
- Vanessa: Well, we'll give them one more day to reply. Hopefully, everyone will get back to us.
- Sally: Yeah, I suppose you're right. It's still early after all. There is one empty spot though!
- Vanessa: What do you mean?
- Sally: I only sent out 7 invites. We could still have one more guest!
- Vanessa: Are you thinking of someone in particular?
- Sally: I don't know ... How about that saxophonist?
- Vanessa: Hmm ... I'm going to have a lot of explaining to do if I invite him.
- Sally: Do you think Marco will be jealous? It could just be a platonic friendship, you know?
- Vanessa: You're probably right. Besides, he could provide the soundtrack.
- Sally: Excellent idea! He'll play a couple of tunes while you dish out the food!
- Vanessa: Speaking of which, our prep starts tomorrow at 2 p.m. I'll need to get a couple of pounds of potatoes, some pork, a few heads of lettuce and more greens.
- Sally: What's on your mind?
- Vanessa: You'll see ...

Learning Points

Talking About Future Actions

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future.

- When you talk about things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the modal will.
- When you ask about intentions, you use going to.
- When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.
- When you talk about schedules or timetables in the future, you use the Simple Present tense.

Will	We'll give them a couple of days to reply.
Going to	Only half of them are going to turn up.
Present Continuous	How many people are coming?
Simple Present tense	Our prep starts tomorrow at 2 p.m.
